ABSTRACT

MOBILE COMMUNICATION TERMINAL

10

15

5

The invention relates to a mobile communication terminal, advantageously a mobile phone. According invention, the communication terminal comprises input means and output means for outputting information to a least partially in a natural language. communication terminal further comprises means storing natural language data for a plurality of natural languages, means for selecting one of the natural languages to be used when outputting information through said output means, and means for editing natural language data.

It is suggested that Fig. 4 is published with the abstract.

20